Weather Key Points

Regional Operations Center

Western Region

Saturday, September 3

- A dangerous heat wave will continue across much of the state through the Labor Day weekend, persisting through the middle of the week across the Central Valley
  - Widespread temperatures of 95-115°F are forecast for inland areas each day, with temperatures reaching the 80s and 90s for central and southern coastal areas. Temperatures in the 90s to around 100°F are expected to extend into northeastern California. These temperatures will be near record territory for many areas, especially Sunday through Tuesday when the hottest readings are expected.
  - Warm overnight low temperatures in the 70s and 80s, and even in the 90s for some southern California foothills, will lead to poor recovery and further compound heat risk impacts
  - Cooler temperatures will return to far northern California on Wednesday, and to the remainder of the state on Thursday, though areas of moderate to locally high heat risk impacts are may linger across the Central Valley and southern deserts
- Fire weather conditions will remain highly elevated for many areas due to the combination of hot and dry weather, despite any widespread strong winds
  - Any new fires could develop and spread quickly given the record-setting nature of the heat and the ongoing drought
  - A period of more widespread gusty winds is likely to bring critical fire weather conditions across the Modoc Plateau Saturday and possibly Sunday
  - Isolated thunderstorms are also possible over the southern mountains and deserts and the southern and central Sierra through Monday. No widespread precipitation is expected but some lightning strikes could occur. A storm or two on Saturday could also produce localized heavy rainfall across southern California.
